A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT & BOARD CHAIR

Thank you for supporting Gleaners Community Food Bank of Southeastern Michigan!

Because of you, we were able to deliver tremendous value for the community in our last fiscal year. In fact, for every dollar Gleaners invested in food and programs, we were able to provide $8.79 in economic benefit to the households we served.

HERE'S HOW WE DELIVERED SOME OF THAT VALUE:

- Distributing more than 28 million meals to the community, at a value of $34.6 million
- Graduating 6,260 people from Cooking Matters™—more than twice our goal—and delivering $1.3 million in economic benefit to participants as a result of better shopping and preparing more meals at home
- Getting assistance to 600 households who qualified for help but did not know how to get it, resulting in an additional $2.2 million in federal SNAP benefits to southeast Michigan families.

In addition, we’re working closely with food rescue organization Forgotten Harvest to identify food security gaps in the areas we serve, and determine how we can best meet the needs of our hungry neighbors.

Similarly, our work at the state level is growing as we partner with the Food Bank Council of Michigan to increase the food and funds received through state channels over the next few years. This should help all Michigan food banks, including Gleaners, better meet the needs of our state’s hungry men, women, children and seniors.

For the next three years, our leadership team is focused on increasing our economic impact to households by 20 percent. We will do this by strengthening our current programs and expanding those that prove to be highly effective. We will also continue to engage new partners and find new ways to address the food needs of our community.

We are excited and honored to lead Gleaners at a time when our envisioned future—and the possibility of a hunger-free community—are closer to being realized. Most of all, we are grateful to you for being an important contributor to our success. Thank you.

Gerald F. Brisson, President

WHAT WINNING LOOKS LIKE FOR FOOD SECURITY & HEALTH

When hunger is solved, our community wins on many levels—from improved household stability to healthier communities to more successful and productive citizens. In these pages, community leaders from various sectors share their thoughts on what it means to win against hunger.

Winning Means Children Aren’t Hungry.

“Students want to learn, grow and achieve but without proper nutrition, they don’t have that opportunity. How can a child have a love of learning if they have a fear of hunger? Madison District Public Schools is proud of our partnership with Gleaners Community Food Bank because Gleaners shares our commitment to serve families. Our partnership through School Food Mobiles will have a life cycle impact in the lives of children.”

RANDY SPECK
Superintendent of Madison District Public Schools

Winning Means Working Together to Solve Hunger.

“Hunger is a formidable adversary but one that we can conquer. Winning against hunger will require the entire food bank network to work together in close coordination to share strategies and bring innovative solutions to scale. It will also require expanding our “team” beyond our traditional partners to include health care, business, and other players who win when hunger is solved. The Food Bank Council of Michigan is committed to its role as a partner and convener of all these important players in solving the challenge of hunger. We believe a food secure Michigan is a healthier, more secure, more productive Michigan. We all win when hunger loses.”

DR. PHILLIP KNIGHT
Executive Director of the Food Bank Council of Michigan
Winning Means Our Communities are Healthier.

“There is a growing interest in the intersections of food insecurity and health. Doctors and health care organizations are taking note, especially as more research has linked food insecurity to increased risk for chronic diseases like obesity, hypertension, and diabetes. Feeding America and our member food banks have more tools now to make the case that food is medicine. Programs that provide healthy food and support people in accessing other services are critically important for supporting our clients’ health. Demonstrating the impact that food banks can have on improving health outcomes is key. I am thrilled that Gleaners is one of the three sites involved in the Feeding America Intervention Trial for Health, rolling out interventions to support clients who are living with diabetes and collecting the critical evidence to demonstrate these programs work. To me, this is what “winning” looks like—not just ending hunger, but doing it in a way where individuals, their families, and our communities are both stronger and healthier.”

Winning Means Families are Thriving.

“Winning means that families are thriving as they embrace the benefits of healthy food choices and regular physical activity. Working with partners like Gleaners, we are creating informed, engaged consumers that have access to healthy food choices, introducing people to new approaches in nutrition that benefit Michigan’s agricultural economy, and measuring positive increases in nutritional behavior that lead to lifelong wellness.”
Gleaners is thankful for our 20-member Board of Directors who provide leadership, guidance, and support for our mission.

OVERCOMING OBSTACLES: COUPLE PERSEVERES WITH HELP FROM GLEANERS PANTRY

Lori and Bill of Brighton have had a secure, fulfilling life. Together, they’ve watched their blended family of three children blossom into adulthood.

They’ve each worked—Bill as a garbage man and maintenance worker—Lori as a long time home health employee. But, without warning, major health problems turned their lives upside down and blew a big hole in the family budget.

Bill suffered two heart attacks and developed diabetes. His reduced mobility makes it impossible for him to work. Lori, too, was forced to stop working due to a bipolar condition that requires her to be on medication, a shocking development for someone in her mid 40’s.

Their income comes from disability checks that keep the bills paid, but that doesn’t leave much for basic needs, like food. Reluctant to ask for help, but finding no other option, the couple eventually connected with Gleaners Shared Harvest Pantry and found relief.

Lori and Bill make the most of their six visits a year to the pantry, stocking up on vegetables, bread, tuna fish, beef stew and other staples. And, they’ve put Lori’s culinary school training to good use. She’s adept at making meals that can be frozen or freezing foods like yogurt, so they can be saved and used later. They are models for doing what it takes and making the most out of what they have.

They’ve also kept their dignity in a tough circumstance with the help of Gleaners. “The staff knows us and has helped remove the stigma of having to get food at a pantry,” said Lori. “We couldn’t be more grateful to Gleaners.”

Nourishing Our Communities: 2015 Efforts

We are pleased to share several successes from our last fiscal year.

GETTING FOOD TO OUR HUNGRY NEIGHBORS

Gleaners finished above goal in total food distributed, providing 34.6 million pounds of nutritious food to our local partner agencies throughout Wayne, Macomb, Oakland, Livingston and Monroe counties in 2015.

HELPING RECORD NUMBERS SHOP BETTER AND EAT HEALTHIER

Cooking Matters™, a Gleaners program where volunteer chefs and nutritionists teach people how to shop for and prepare healthy meals on a limited budget, graduated record numbers in 2015. 6,260 participants graduated from the program, including 1,428 kids and teens.

ENGAGING CHAMPIONS TO COLLECT MORE FOOD AND FUNDS

Our Food and Fund Drives team continues to build lasting relationships with community partners. This year, local businesses, churches, non-profit and community partners, and even individuals helped raise more than $760,000 and collected several million pounds of food through food and fund drive activities.
COLLABORATING TO SUCCESS

We’ve increased the visibility of our work with Forgotten Harvest with a published op-ed, an online video featuring both Gerry Brisson and Kirk Mayes, and we have received public accolades from Feeding America, The Food Bank Council of Michigan, and Senator Debbie Stabenow’s office because of our joint efforts to increase food security. View the online video here: www.gcfb.org/PartnersInHungerRelief.

MAKING HEALTHY FOOD AVAILABLE—AND TASTE GOOD!

We know more fresh produce is wanted and needed. As a result, we increased our produce distribution by 2.3 million pounds in 2015 and taught recipients how to cook fresh foods they may not have been familiar with.
Gleaners is grateful to the more than 43,100 donors who make our work possible every year. On these pages, we recognize our legacy donors and those who were honored at our annual President’s Table dinner.

THE GLEANERS LEGACY SOCIETY

Established in 2008, The Gleaners Legacy Society exists to build a permanent source of funding in the Gleaners Endowment Fund to continue our mission of feeding hungry people and nourishing our communities. Members of The Gleaners Legacy Society are truly champions in the fight against hunger in southeast Michigan and shall ever be remembered for their valiant efforts.

FOOD INSECURITY IN SOUTHEAST MICHIGAN

Asset Limited, Income Constrained, Employed (ALICE) refers to households with working adults who earn more than the U.S. poverty level, yet don’t earn enough to meet the basic standard of living. Many of these households rely on emergency food assistance to make it through the month. Combined with households at or below poverty, four of every ten households in southeast Michigan struggle to make ends meet.

THE BASIC COST OF LIVING ANNUALLY IN SOUTHEAST MICHIGAN IS $58,755

THE WEINGARTZ FAMILY

"Mowing Down" Child Hunger: A Philanthropic Tradition Born from Blessings

The Weingartz family has been operating their business for 70 years, generation by generation. It began as a mom-and-pop feed and farm supply store and has grown to five locations focusing on outdoor power equipment: everything from lawn to snow.

Ray Weingartz retired four years ago, but he still participates in family business meetings with his children. It was during one of these meetings that the family decided to partner with Gleaners.

“We’ve been very blessed and believe that we need to share those blessings,” says Ray. “This was instilled in me by my parents. When times were tough, they sacrificed to help others. My dad believed in giving back, and I’ve passed this along to my kids too. Especially in recent years with the struggling economy, there’s a great need.”

Ray’s son Dan echoed these sentiments. “As long as I can remember, it was very much taught that it’s not about us, but about what impact you can make on the lives of others. My parents were generous, always cared a lot about other people, and were good to us.”

“As long as I can remember, it was very much taught that it’s not about us, but about what impact you can make on the lives of others.”

The Weingartz family had long been supporters of Capuchin Soup Kitchen and others, but they wanted to focus on one annual project. “My son Dan did much of the legwork and research,” says Ray. “Gleaners covers the area where we do business, and we wanted to give back to the community that has supported us.”
“The recession hit Detroit hard, and Gleaners touched everyone,” says Dan. “They have a wonderful reputation as a well-run organization. Partnering with Gleaners was a great opportunity to help a wide spectrum across southeast Michigan. All of my siblings were involved in this decision; it was a unanimous vote.”

Weingartz became the match donor for the Mow Down Hunger campaign six years ago and has helped provide more than 4.24 million meals for hungry kids.

Weingartz became the match donor for the Mow Down Hunger campaign six years ago and has helped provide more than 4.24 million meals for hungry kids. “When we started we had no idea how big or successful this would become,” says Dan. “Our media connections have been very gracious in helping to get the word out at little or no cost.”

“It’s great to see how this has taken off,” says Ray. “More and more people know about it. Our employees and customers have been very supportive, and we try to bring attention to the need and the work that Gleaners does year-round.”
