A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT & BOARD CHAIR

We are honored to lead the board and staff of Gleaners — each of whom is dedicated to making a difference.

Thank you for reviewing our annual report! We can celebrate some terrific successes for our work last year — all made possible because of the generous support of our friends and champions in the fight against hunger.

YOUR SUPPORT IN OUR LAST FISCAL YEAR HELPED US:
• Provide over 30,000,000 meals to 435,000 people in SE Michigan;
• Graduate 3,170 people from our Cooking Matters™ program — returning to them collectively $900,000 a year in savings as they learn to shop better and prepare more nutritious meals at home;
• Get assistance for 677 households who qualified for help, but didn’t know how to get it. Gleaners helped these households receive $530,000 in food help through the federal SNAP program;
• Give 121,000 backpacks of food to kids at schools throughout southeast Michigan — making their weekends free from hunger when they otherwise may not have had any food until the next school day;
• Provide over 4,000,000 meals over the summer to kids who depend on school meals, but in the summer often go without;
• And much more!

ON TOP OF THIS, WE ARE LOOKING TO:
• Start a senior nutrition education and produce distribution program — specifically geared to the diets and health concerns of our more mature neighbors who have little or no access to healthy food choices;
• Discover if it’s possible for our low income neighbors who have special diets to receive prescriptions for food that could allow insurance companies to cover the cost of those special food items as they would for medication;
• Add a new pantry model that can be supported not only by donations, but also by social enterprise so that low-income households can leverage their dollars while providing some support for the services they are getting.

And you make all this possible. We are honored to lead the board and staff of Gleaners — each of whom is dedicated to making a difference. On their behalf, and from both of us personally, thanks for all you are doing to make this possible.

GLEANERS’ MISSION AND 2023 ENVISIONED FUTURE

Gleaners’ envisioned future is to significantly reduce hunger among families in southeast Michigan by 2023. Last fall, our board and staff worked together to create a path to achieve this vision. It will require our best efforts at emergency food distribution, and more.

To significantly reduce hunger by 2023, we need to build strong, collaborative relationships with like-minded partners to create and deliver measurable, relevant, and sustainable programs.

We need to set best practices for innovation and productivity, food safety and nutrition, program integration, logistics, and efficiency. And we need to continue to engage a dedicated and committed staff, board, and volunteers who work passionately and cooperatively to achieve the organization’s vision.

We want to share with you a few priorities that we see as critical to our success:

More Food for More Children

We must reach as many children as possible with the food they need to be successful, now and into the future. This includes evaluation of our current kids programming so that we can learn what works well, how the food is used, and if it provides adequate support. We can then use that knowledge to grow our children’s programs efficiently and cost effectively.

“Our future is dependent on kids; all of our kids. It’s been proven that children’s development is negatively impacted by not having enough nutritious food to eat. Gleaners’ focus on kids, ensuring that as many as possible have enough to eat, helps all of society as it gives these children even more possibility to develop and achieve their dreams.”

DAVID L. MORRISON
Gleaners Board Member

“I feel that it is critical that we boost our efforts to feed kids, as the statistics reveal how much they are suffering, and there is certainly no question that hunger will interfere with a child’s ability to learn. Expansion of our Cooking Matters™ program will help more parents to offer better nutrition and more meals to their kids.”

Reaching Vulnerable Seniors
We must help our growing senior population receive access to sufficient nutritious food to maintain their health and well-being. This can include the expansion of successful pilot senior programs like senior market trips and bus tours, as well as the addition of Cooking Matters™ curriculum specific to senior nutrition.

"Children and seniors are the most vulnerable and dependent members of our society, yet deserve the greatest support of our community. Meeting their basic needs cannot be limited to random charitable giving but must be an integral part of our plan moving forward."

RYAN HOYLE
GalaxE.Solutions, Gleaners Board Member

"Such incredible emphasis is put on helping our youth that we often overlook the needs of the elderly. As Baby Boomers begin to age, it is of the greatest importance that we ready our programs for the growing number of individuals that will be in need."

HEATHER LOVIER
Quicken Loans, Gleaners Board Member

Strengthening the Emergency Food Network
We must engage our partner network to find ways to deliver food and programs that provide the most benefit in the most cost effective way. This includes working together to establish successful fundraising strategies, and learning from partners and clients how the emergency food network can better serve their needs.

"We can only address the needs of all of our citizens through the diversity of programs and communities served by all of our partners. No one entity can successfully tackle hunger alone."

CATHERINE SCHMITT
University of Detroit Mercy, Gleaners Board Member

"It’s imperative to keep the topic of food insecurity at the forefront of our discussions. The sheer number of charities competing for donations has grown exponentially over the years. Keeping Gleaners and our partners in that discussion is essential to our mission."

CLIENT STORY: MOVING PAST CRISIS, INTO STABILITY

"What I can do, I will do. I like to see the reactions on people’s faces when they’re given help."

When Phillip Marsh was sixteen years old, he worked two jobs while attending school. He planned to join the Air Force and aspired to work for NASA. But before he was twenty-one, he suffered a crippling leg injury, and his doctor told him he would never walk again.

Phillip is now fifty-six and mobile with the help of a walker. He relies on public transportation to get around, and his disability has made it difficult to work, but he makes sure to stay active by volunteering at many different organizations. “What I can do, I will do. I like to see the reactions on people’s faces when they’re given help.”

Phillip understands the need for extra help. He receives disability, which helps to pay his bills, but it’s been hard to save money. Before finding the food pantry at Calvary Presbyterian Church in Detroit, Phillip relied on a friend for shelter and wasn’t always sure what his next meal would consist of.

He now has his own apartment, and is finding stability in the food help that he receives, the relationships that he’s built with other members of the church, and through his volunteer efforts at the food pantry. “The food program helped a lot. The food from Gleaners inspires different types of meals — I would receive things I wouldn’t normally buy, and it would send me in another direction. It added variety to my life.”

Phillip hopes to help grow the church’s food pantry in the year to come. When he started volunteering, he says about fifty people were receiving help. “Since then, we’ve grown, more people know about us and are helped by the food distribution. I hope we can continue to reach more people. I look forward to bigger and greater things.”

NOURISHING OUR COMMUNITIES

We are pleased to share several new efforts from our last fiscal year.

FRESH PRODUCE FOR SENIORS
We partnered with Wayne Metropolitan Community Action Agency to sponsor weekly Senior Market Days at three Detroit farmers markets during the summer. More than 300 seniors received free transportation, vouchers for fresh produce, and the opportunity to attend cooking and exercise classes.

FRESH FOOD FOR PONTIAC
We expanded Fresh Food Share, giving community members in both Detroit and Pontiac access to affordable fresh produce in their neighborhoods. Fruit and vegetables purchased by Gleaners from local farmers at wholesale prices are packed into individual boxes by volunteers, paired with a newsletter containing recipes and nutrition information, and then delivered to customers.

BETTER CHOICES FOR CLIENTS
We implemented NuVal, a nutritional scoring tool to help clients make more informed food decisions. Cooking Matters™ participants learn how to use NuVal scores to compare nutritional quality of food items while shopping. We are also adding NuVal scores to food items in our inventory to allow our partners to use this information when ordering food from Gleaners.
“EAT MORE FRUITS AND VEGGIES, AND THEY WILL TOO”
We received a Michigan Fitness Foundation grant to promote healthy eating through Gleaners programs. The grant allows Gleaners to create and distribute nutrition information at Mobile Pantry distributions, through our BackPack and Fresh Food Share programs, and via a giant truck graphic. Gleaners also hired a “pantry coach” to help partner agency staff and volunteers provide nutrition education to their clients.

RELIEF FROM SUMMER HUNGER
We exceeded our goal of providing two million meals to children through our Hunger Free Summer campaign. Underwritten by the Charter One Foundation, along with other corporate and individual donors, this annual matching gift campaign helps thousands of children who rely on free meals during the school year receive regular, reliable nutrition when school is out for summer.

50,000 LBS OF NUTRITION
We purchased, in partnership with Outshine Fruit Bars, 50,000 lbs of fruits and vegetables to distribute to kids and families through our School-Based Mobile Pantry program during the summer.

CRISIS RESPONSE
We facilitated the donation and distribution of emergency drinking water for Detroit residents, as well as flood recovery clean-up kits for those who suffered damage from the August floods.
Gleaners is grateful to the more than 43,230 donors who make our work possible every year. On these pages, we recognize our legacy donors and those who were honored at our annual President's Table dinner.

One of Gleaners' highest priorities is to address child hunger in the region. While the situation has improved slightly, we continue to see high numbers of children who experience food insecurity in every county we serve.

707,130 people in southeast Michigan are food insecure...

200,990 of them are children

LEAVING A LEGACY

Food Bank Founder Invests in Gleaners' Future

When Gene Gonya co-founded Gleaners Community Food Bank in 1977, he wanted to distribute surplus food from farm fields to hungry people. This concept of turning surplus into a plus for hungry families has become his legacy and continues in many forms. “Everyone has a surplus at some time in their life,” says Gene. Whether it’s food, time, or money, everyone can give in some way. “The big picture is so big — the need for housing, education, drug counseling — it’s very expensive to help make people total again. Emergency food is on the inexpensive end of what you can do to help someone. It’s something you can do. It’s the foundation for the future. If you can’t keep the food going, you can’t keep the rest going.”

“We all make judgments about people, and if you stand in line at a soup kitchen, you may think this person looks like they need food and that person doesn’t based on their appearance. But you have no sense of what’s happened in their life. Maybe they were in a war, they’ve been beaten up, their parents were abusive. They might be grandparents taking care of their children’s children. Somewhere in their life, something got screwed up.”

“It’s something you can do. It’s the foundation for the future. If you can’t keep the food going, you can’t keep the rest going.”

In the beginning, Gene thought the food bank might be a two-year project, but then he realized how many other organizations need food. He and his partners needed to talk about the potential and plan for the future, to have money invested and growing so it was there for the rainy days. Food bank donations fluctuate just like the economy, and right now donations are down.

“There is no exit strategy for the food bank; it must continue.”

Gleaners Food Bank has been operating for over thirty-seven years, and Gene is retired now, but he continues to be invested in its future. When he sold his family farm, he placed the surplus money into an annuity with the Community Foundation that manages the endowment for Gleaners. He receives a $7,000 annual annuity, and when he dies, $43,000 will be gifted to the food bank. “There are many ways to give — life insurance policies and gifts in your children’s names. That way, you’re passing this legacy on to your kids. Your children will know and understand about the food bank.”

“There is no exit strategy for the food bank; it must continue.” Gene’s legacy of turning surplus into a plus for hungry people continues to grow and evolve with new leadership, dedicated staff and volunteers, and community support and investment.

There is no end to the job of ending hunger. Anyone, at any time, can find themselves in a situation where they can’t make ends meet and need some extra help. Gleaners is committed to ensuring that the food people need is always available to help them get through a tough time.

By leaving a gift to Gleaners in your will or estate plan, you can ensure Gleaners will be there in times of need well into the future. As you consult with your financial advisor or tax preparer, ask about the many charitable options that can complement your personal and financial objectives, while leaving a legacy for years to come.

A planned gift to Gleaners can benefit the community, and also:

• Pay you a stream of income for life
• Increase the yield you may receive compared to current investments
• Provide a charitable income tax deduction
• Reduce or eliminate capital gains taxes or estate taxes

You can make your bequest or estate gift to Gleaners directly, or to the Gleaners Endowment Fund at the Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan, where it will provide a permanent source of support for our mission. You can even establish a named fund, which will memorialize your support for a hunger-free community forever.
