Our MISSION

We exist to provide households with access to sufficient, nutritious food and related resources.

We accomplish this through collaboration, efficient operations, education, and innovative solutions to achieve a hunger-free community in Southeast Michigan.

We BELIEVE ...

- hunger can be solved.
- people are worth investing in.
- “child” and “hunger” are two words that should never go together.
- everyone benefits from a hunger-free community.
- real change takes courage.
- complex problems take collaborative solutions.
- in the dignity of every person in the community.
- good data enables better decisions.

Our STRATEGIC PRIORITIES

Our vision is to end hunger in Southeast Michigan. Gleaners is committed to the following strategic priorities in order to make this vision a reality:

Reflecting on A Year of Community and Impact

Looking back on 2024, I am incredibly proud of all that we achieved together. Thanks to our amazing team, dedicated board members, volunteers, partners, and donors, we accomplished more and better for our community.

As 2025 marks 19 years of my service to Gleaners—11 as President and CEO—I am deeply grateful for the opportunity to lead this incredible organization.

Together, we have grown to new heights and capabilities, and I am confident that Gleaners will continue to thrive in the years ahead.

To everyone who has contributed to Gleaners' mission to solve hunger in Southeast Michigan, thank you.

Gerry Brisson | President & CEO

FRESH! BY GLEANERS

A New Kind of Neighborhood Market

Along 8 Mile Road in Warren, the next evolution in supplemental food services has arrived: Fresh! by Gleaners.

The Spring 2025 launch of this innovative market reimagines a food assistance model improving access to free fresh produce, milk, and eggs—essential items that are costly for families managing tight budgets.

Fresh! in Progress | February 2025

Fresh! by Gleaners is designed to look, feel, and operate like a retail-grocery environment, empowering families with three convenient ways to access nutritious food: in-market, curbside pick-up, or refrigerated locker pick-up.

“These three shopping models are designed so guests can access the foods they need most, when they need them, in amounts they choose,” said Julie Beamer, chief operating officer of Gleaners. “With evening, Saturday, or after-work hours available, families will have the flexibility they need to get fresh foods more frequently.”

But Fresh! is about more than just food. It’s about creating experiences where guests feel valued, supported, and part of a community.

The Fresh! Guest Experience...

In-Market:

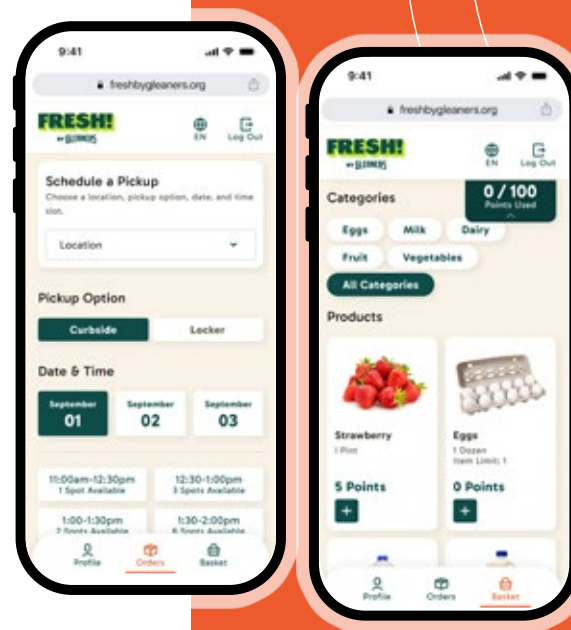

Optimism thrives with a bright, cheerful ambiance filled with a variety of fresh produce, chilled milk, upbeat music, and warm smiles. Guests browse the displays, no appointment necessary, choosing what they need to nourish their families—whether it’s a single banana or a whole bunch. Volunteers are ready to help, answering questions and sharing moments of connection.

At curbside:

A family on their way home from school arrives to pick up the order they easily placed online earlier that day. A volunteer carefully loads their trunk with food and peace of mind for tomorrow morning’s breakfast.

Locker pick-up:

Late in the evening, a man who worked a double shift gets his milk and eggs from the secure, refrigerated locker he reserved online. He’s thankful the locker is available at a time when other food assistance providers are closed.

Gleaners developed new technologies to support this innovative project

Building Fresh! | February 2025

A Vision for Community Impact

Fresh! by Gleaners is the culmination of five years of research and community feedback. “We’ve engaged with guests, partners, community leaders, and donors to shape this model,” said Gerry Brisson, president and CEO of Gleaners. “Every decision, from the location to the layout to the shopping options, was guided by what people told us they need most.”

“More than an opportunity to transform how families access nutritious food, Fresh! will embody the outcomes of learning, collaboration, and a commitment to building stronger communities.”

Judith McNeeley | Vice President of Community Engagement

The location, positioned along the border of Macomb and Wayne counties, was carefully selected as an opportunity to help an area of high need, where gaps exist in the food access network. Nearly 30% of residents, and more than 44% of children, within three miles of Fresh! are or are at risk of experiencing food insecurity.

Budgeted to reach

households

each month

The single largest distribution center for the supplemental food network in Southeast Michigan

As a launch and learn pilot, Fresh! will begin by serving residents closest to the facility, budgeted for 5,000 households each month. At this volume of support, Fresh! will be the single largest distribution center for the supplemental food network in Southeast Michigan, with room to grow as resources and needs evolve.

“More than an opportunity to transform how families access nutritious food, Fresh! will embody the outcomes of learning, collaboration, and a commitment to building stronger communities,” said Judith McNeeley, vice president of community engagement. “We want every guest to feel empowered when they walk through our doors—knowing this is a place created just for them.”

Why Fresh! Matters

Gregory Jolly regularly visits the Ford Community Center in Detroit’s east side with a furniture dolly in tow, ready to pick up fresh food from Gleaners. This routine has been a key part of his life, helping him embrace healthier eating. “A whole lot of folks pass out food, but Gleaners is the best,” Gregory shares. “They’ve got fresh stuff, healthy stuff. It’s helped me eat healthier.”

The variety and quality of the food Gregory receives have made all the difference. He loves trying new vegetables and appreciates the recipes Gleaners provides, which inspire him to get creative in the kitchen. “Sometimes they have vegetables that would be too expensive to buy at the store, but they’ve got it here,” he says. “I’ve never gotten anything that was old—everything’s always fresh.”

For Gregory, Gleaners isn’t just a source of food; it’s a source of hope and inspiration.

Innovating for Good: Continuous Improvement for Greater Impact

On a bustling Wednesday morning, at the peak of the holiday season, a large group of Meijer volunteers buzzes with cheerful conversation in the briefing room at Gleaners' South Campus. Optimism fills the air. "Alright everybody, who's excited?" Volunteer Coordinator Alma Perez asks the group, prompting cheers and applause. "Thank you all for being here! By volunteering today, you are making a real difference for our communities."

After coaching the group on their task—packing boxes of food with all the trimmings for a bountiful holiday meal—Perez assigns roles, and it's off to the warehouse. From the flow-through racks on the assembly line to the packing equipment, everything is meticulously arranged for efficiency and impactful volunteer experiences. Just a couple of hours later, thousands of meals are ready for our neighbors.

This is one of many examples of Gleaners' strategic priorities in action toward continuous improvement. Joe Knight, senior director of operations process and engagement for Gleaners, explained, "We ask ourselves: what can we do to improve at every level—for our partner agencies, our volunteers, our guests? It's all about making Gleaners as valuable as possible to the community."

At its core, every improvement is about building stronger processes to do more and better for our neighbors. With the increased amenities of the South Campus, Gleaners' operations team has focused on enhancing three key areas: volunteer experiences, warehouse productivity and partner agency support.

Feeding the Future: A Study for Kids, From Kids

Since 2007, Gleaners has provided essential summer meals to children through the USDA's Summer Food Service Program.

In 2024, Gleaners concluded a groundbreaking two-year study focused on designing a meal program that was not only nutritious but also that kids were excited to eat.

For the first time—not just for Gleaners, but in any published study—our team documented exactly what and how much they ate, in addition to asking the children directly about their preferences. “We’re meeting kids where they’re at,” said Dr. Julie Bedford, senior director of school partnerships. “We collected feedback directly from kids about the foods they like to eat because we want to approach it from their perspective.”

The study offered valuable insights into children’s eating habits. For example, the idea that “kids eat with their eyes” led to thoughtful changes, such as ensuring every plate had three colors and balancing nutritious options with familiar favorites like burrito bowls, pizza on whole-wheat crust, chicken nuggets made from white meat, and sweet potato fries. Presentation also proved important—switching from beige plates to black plates encouraged kids to eat more of their meals.

➤➤➤ One of the enhanced meals served in the 2024 Summer Food Service Program

These findings helped guide updates to Gleaners’ 2024 summer meal program. Warm meals were introduced, more fresh fruit and enhanced proteins were included, and mobile mealtimes were adjusted to better fit children’s schedules. “The changes we’ve made so far are already making a significant, statistical improvement in the amount of food kids are eating,” said Dr. Bedford.

Through studies like these, Gleaners is making meaningful, long-term improvements that support kids and families across southeastern Michigan. “We’ve gotten a ton of positive feedback from kids and parents this past year,” said Dr. Bedford. “Now we’re building on what we know is working to continue supporting these families into the future.”

From Garden to Table: Cultivating Community and Feeding Families

Tucked beside Brighton NC Machine off Whitmore Lake Road, Gleaners' Victory Garden is a hidden gem of Livingston County, and its impact is felt across the community. Each season, Gleaners' staff and volunteers tend to dozens of rows of organic vegetables, fruits, and herbs, all destined for donation.

Thanks to their efforts last year, 2,350 pounds of free produce reached Livingston County families through Gleaners' Shared Harvest Pantry and Fresh Market—our client-choice pantry and mobile distribution site located in Howell—and on 11 local produce carts strategically placed throughout the county.

"People get really excited about what we put out on the carts. We don't supply all the produce our guests get from Shared Harvest Pantry, but we try to supplement it with interesting stuff like eggplant, hot peppers, and different kinds of squash." — Nick Passiak | Victory Garden Coordinator

Beyond providing fresh produce, the Victory Garden serves an educational purpose. "Some volunteers have never pulled a carrot from the ground before," Victory Garden Coordinator Nick Passiak explained. "It's cool to give people the opportunity to learn about organic farming and get hands-on experience."

The Victory Garden is more than just a plot of land for growing food—it's a testament to what we can achieve together, and proof that building a stronger, healthier community is worth getting a little dirt on your knees.

Something Fresh! for the 31st Annual Women's Power Breakfast

The 31st annual Women's Power Breakfast brought together more than 550 passionate supporters dedicated to building a stronger, food-secure community.

The 2024 event, held at Ford Field, featured the exciting debut of Fresh! by Gleaners and an inspiring keynote conversation between Sheila Ford Hamp, principal owner and chair of the Detroit Lions, and Lindsay Verstegen, chief people and diversity officer of the Detroit Lions.

Thanks to the generosity of attendees and sponsors, the event raised more than $335,000—empowering more than 1 million children and families throughout Southeast Michigan with access to nutritious food. Together, we celebrated the power of community and the impact we can achieve when we come together to ensure our neighbors have the resources they need to thrive.
